Cambridge attorney appointed chair of MBA's Health Law Section for its centennial year

Cambridge attorney Stephen M. Fiore has been appointed by Massachusetts Bar Association President Denise Squillante as chair of the association's Health Law Section for the 2010-11 year. His appointment begins Sept. 1.

In honor of its 100th anniversary, the MBA will be celebrating a century of service to the public, the profession and the rule of law throughout its 2010-11 association year.

The MBA's Health Law Section is designed to improve the professional competence of attorneys dealing with health care issues through seminars and publications. It strives to bring together all members interested in the practice and delivery of health care.

Fiore, a Belmont resident, is an attorney at Foster & Eldridge LLP in Cambridge, where he specializes in the defense of medical providers and provides risk management advice to health care professionals. He previously practiced as an in-house litigation counsel, where he defended claims involving liability and employment law. Fiore contributes to the legal and health communities as an author and frequent lecturer on medical-legal issues and health care law for continuing medical education and risk-management programs. He has been named a Massachusetts "Super Lawyer" by Boston magazine.

The MBA's 17 sections and Young Lawyers Division provide lawyers with up-to-date information on specific areas of law, monitor law-related legislation, sponsor professional education programs and provide information on the law for the general public.

Incorporated in 1911, the Massachusetts Bar Association is a non-profit organization that serves the legal profession and the public by promoting the administration of justice, legal education, professional excellence and respect for the law. The MBA represents a diverse group of attorneys, judges and legal professionals across the commonwealth.
